Survivors Speak About Long-Term Coronavirus Effects and Doctors Getting Paid Off?

Tens of millions of people worldview have contracted Covid-19 and lived to tell about it. And what they are telling is not good. From WSJ:

> Many are dealing with symptoms weeks or months after they were expected to recover, often with puzzling new complications that can affect the entire body—severe fatigue, cognitive issues and memory lapses, digestive problems, erratic heart rates, headaches, dizziness, fluctuating blood pressure, even hair loss.

Bloomberg news did a long article on this topic, which I suggest you read in full. All of those people who were saying this is just the flu have a lot of explaining to do. They should be ashamed of themselves. Never listen to them again.

There is one contention that Trump made and many conservatives seem to believe, and that is that doctors are monetarily incentivized to put Covid-19 on death certificates and that this is why the numbers are supposedly inflated. Wrong on both counts. First off, anyone who is vaguely familiar with cause of death determinations with know that several causes can be put on a single death certificate. Ask any doctor, they will tell you if someone has had for example cancer for several years, gets pneumonia and then dies, it is not uncommon to put both on the death certificate. Why? Because the exact cause of death when there several possible causes is not always known. Was it the pneumonia or the cancer that was the cause of death? Similarly, with Covid.

On a final note, I find it rich that conservatives, who want the healthcare system to be profit based, are suddenly surprised that such a system incentivizes profit. If only there was a way to create a healthcare system that was about care and not money. Now who suggested that? Bernie Sanders and he was called a communist for it. Apparently, I must have missed the part in Stalin's Russia where they gave healthcare to everyone and then killed them afterwards.
